SHORT BIO

I am a full professor of Economics at the Università di Sassari and a research affiliate at CRENoS. Previously, I held academic positions at SOAS and at Queen Mary College, University of London. My current research focuses on financial systems' stability and regulation; credit markets under asymmetric information; macroeconomics with financial frictions; pandemic, firm's organization and incentive schemes in the labor market. In the past, I worked on financial development and economic growth and on signalling mechanisms in markets with adverse selection. I hold a Laurea in Economia e Commercio from Università di Pisa and Scuola Sant'Anna di Pisa, an MSc in Economics from LSE, a Ph.D. in Economics from SOAS, and a Ph.D. in Economics from Scuola Sant'Anna di Pisa. More information about my academic profile and research can be found on my webpage.
