Associate Professor of Economics - University of Corsica

SHORT BIO

After completing my Master's degree in Economics at Pompeu Fabra University (Barcelona, Spain) in 2007, I earned my PhD in 2010 from the University of Cagliari (Sardinia, Italy), with a dissertation titled "Social and Economic Costs of Crime in Italy." From March 2010 to August 2015, I was affiliated with the University of Sassari (Sardinia, Italy), initially as a postdoctoral researcher and later as a fixed-term researcher (Ricercatore a Tempo Determinato, RTD). In 2015, I joined the University of Corsica as an Associate Professor (Maître de Conférences) in Economics. My research focuses on three main areas that I have developed throughout my academic career: empirical legal studies, productivity analysis, and regional economics.
